Difference Made by the New Law to Property-Owners in Center Township Whose Names Begin with the Letter "H."

The list below continues the list of all tax-payers of Center township, who owned the same property for 1890 and 1891. All names beginning with H are given, whether the taxes have been increased or decreased. The only names omitted are those of corporations and of persons whose property has changed hands between April 1, 1890, and the same day a year later. Names are not taken where improvements have been added or destroyed, or where sales or purchases of lands or lots changes the holding of the tax-payer. No property in Indianapolis, West Indianapolis, Brightwood or Woodruff Place is in this list, as separate lists have been prepared for these municipalities.

This method affords an absolutely fair and just method of judging the effect of the Painting on Exhibition of a Garden Scene-Cars on the Wrong Track.

There is now on exhibition at the H. Lieber Company's art gallery one of the highest-priced-perhaps the highest-pricedpainting ever brought to this city, if the great French painting of the Prodigal Son exhibited here many years ago, and after wards burned, be excepted. The painting 18 by Ferdinand Heilbuth, and represents a garden scene foreground, with two ladfes, one seated, the other leaning over her, while behind them, stretching away in a long and beautiful vista, are trees and meadows and an old farm-house. The painting is four by five feet, and is valued at $6,500. The costumes of the ladies, their positions, and all the surroundings and accessories are very pleasing and evidently true to nature. The picture representing a night scene on West Washington street, looking east from Mississippi street, and which received such deservedly pleasant notice from the papers, has found an amateur critic, who at a glance discovered a serious departure from truth in the painter's portrayal. It was a been heard of.

are on the wrong tracks." Sure enough, the cars going westward are on the south track and those going eastward are on the north track, which would knock the transfer system as it now exists into inextricable confusion.

STOLE SUNDAY-SCHOOL MONEY.

Real-Estate Office Burglarized -- Janitor Wanted to Play the Races.

When Miss Meyers, book-keeper at Grover & Seguin's, 32 East Market street, unlocked a drawer in her desk yesterday morning she saw at once that some person had been into it since she had left it the night before. Investigation showed that $9 in money, collected by her after Mr. Seguin had left on the night previous, had been taken. Upon the discovery of this loss a thorough investigation was made and it was found that about $40 had been taken from the desk of Mr. Seguin. Two other desks in the office had also been broken into, but nothing else was secured. No attempt was made to open the safe and it is presumed that the robbery was by some one acquainted with the fact that money was sometimes left in the desks.

A window in a back room, which opens into an alley, was raised, but the shutters were shut and it would be impossible to open the window from the outside. The janitor of the building about 10 o'clock Monday night left the keys to the effice with the clerk at the Denison House, and up to the time of closing the office last night had not been seen. Miss Meyers said that yesterday morning two colored men came into the office and wanted the keys, saying that the japitor had left the city with a gambler and was going to tollow the races and had made arrangements with them to do his work. About $5 of the money belonged to the Sunday-school of Christ Church, it repre-Sunday-school of Christ Church, it representing the amount of the collection Sunday afternoon. This money, which was brought in just a few minutes before Mr. Seguin left on Monday evening, was in the small envelopes just as received from the various classes, each envelope placed in the book of the class whose collection it was. These had been tied into a bundle and left lying on Mr. Seguin's desk. The money had been taken out of the envelopes and the books again tied in a bundle as at first. bundle as at first.

The case was reported to the police shortly after 9 o'clock yesterday and they are now investigating it.

Night-Blooming Cereus.

Last night, between 8 and 12 o'clock, a hundred or more persons visited Bruce's green-house, on College avenue, near Fifteenth street, to see a night-blooming cereus. The plant, which is about ten years old, had nine magnificent flowers and has about forty or more buds. Several of these latter will be open to-night, and any one who enjoys this rare sight is welwhite with an outer edge of pink, and they are eight inches in diameter and very fragrant. Persons went in groups of from two to twenty, a large number to see the flower for the first time and others to review this gorgeous product of nature. Each visitor was presented with a boutonniere. A second plant well worth seeing, at the same place, is a Cloth of Gold rose tree, which covers the entire roof of the green-

IT HAS GONE GLIMMERING

No Hope of that Federal Building Appropriation During This Session.

Bynum's Hopes Take a Sudden Tumble-Congress Will Adjourn in a Weak, and It Will Be Buried in the Calendar.

Here perishes hope of that new federal building, so far as this session of Congress is concerned. But a week or so ago Mr. Bynum was assuring his beloved constituents that that appropriation of $1,250,-000 was a "sure go" and would pass the House in a week or two. Suddenly, however, the bottom has dropped out of the whole thing, and now it must all be done over again next winter, for no statesman can be expected to remember a public can be expected to remember a public building bill through vacation. A special to the Journal from its Washington correspondent last night, says:

"Representative Bynum stated to the Journal correspondent this afternoon that he had abandoned all hopes of securing action by the House at this session upon his bill appropriating $1,:50,000 for a new federal building at Indianapolis. I did believe till a few days ago, said Mr. Bynum, 'that we would reach the bill upon the calendar before adjournment, but we cannot do it at this session. It is now plain that Congress will adjourn next now plain that Congress will adjourn next week, and all of the time intervening will be consumed by the consideration of appro-priation and other general bills of impor-tance to the country at large.

"'If we could get the measure through the "If we could get the measure through the House at this session it would, I have no doubt, go through the Senate without delay, but we must wait. The bill will be passed at the session next winter. There are a number of public building bills upon the House calendar and some more will be placed there soon, among them the Muncie bill, and at the next session the committee on public buildings and grounds will get a day or two for the consideration of its measures, and all of those upon the calendar will be taken up and disposed of, and I am sure that then the Indianapolis bill am sure that then the Indianapolis bill

FURNITURE.

I have the largest and best assorted stock of new fresh goods in this city. New furniture is so cheap that it will not pay you to buy up old shop-worn goods at any price. Do not make any purchase until you come and see what handsome goods I can offer for very little money. I am making a special drive on Bedroom Suites.
